Description

Feature request:

When the harvesters run have them generate the timestamp to a file on your pc. The next time the harvesters / goblins / whatever... runs have the script check the file on the pc for the last timestamp ran. If it is less than two hours the script waits the rest of the remaining time up to two hours before running. Otherwise if it has been longer than 2 hours the script can run automatically.

This will help mitigate a character standing around doing nothing after a client has crashed due to the many many memory leaks the client now has.
