Has anyone else experienced this? Can you provide exact numbers of FPS before drop and after drop?

in my experience, FPS would start at 60 and eventually drop to < 20 after a few hours.

it doesnt seem to matter how busy the system is. I am multiboxing a few clients if that matters.

any updates on this?

I have not experienced this at all, I run multiple clients and some are logged on for hours at a time. FPS ranges from 54-60 over like 8 hours.

It would probably be best if everyone with an experience (good or bad) posts as much as possible about their setup: what operating system, what scripts are running, exactly how many clients running, etc.

3930k

32gb ram

780ti video card

dx9 on the clients

Windows 8

Using ISBoxer with 8 + clients

MSMage has reported this issue for a long time. CyberTech was looking into it at one point.

So, guardian, you're ONLY running isboxer with isxeve loaded? No other scripts?

Correct Ama

Just with eve? I've seen lots of problems with the 780ti in EVE and other games (fps drop, spikes etc)

Yes with just EVE and when i did some basic testing a month + ago, only with isxeve running.

rogeruk: Did you notice that the bug is only happening with multiple clients and never changing systems. I just wanted to confirm that you are not experiencing this bug using multiple clients and NOT changing systems at all. (guardian is reporting that changing systems fixes the issue.)

#13 - 2014-10-14 12:03 PM - rogeruk

Only the one client stays in the same system, the others are constantly moving.
I'm not experiencing any of the fps drop
